

Subject: [sacm] Next Steps

Date: Friday, August 3, 2012 10:43:28 AM Pacific Daylight Time

From: Adam Montville (sent by <sacm-bounces@ietf.org>)

To: sacm@ietf.org

All:

Yesterday's meeting went very well, in my opinion - thank you to all who attended and participated. We received a lot of very good advice, and we have a lot of work to do. It seems that the first order of business is really getting our use cases and charter squared off, with a goal of getting an acceptable draft charter done within the next four to six weeks. I propose that we shoot for five weeks (September 7), provided that is enough time to submit before Atlanta.

With respect to the use cases, there seemed to be some agreement that we would focus on use cases 1 and 3 ("Acceptance and Enforcement of Acceptable State" and "Security Control Verification and Monitoring" respectively). I'm assuming that Dave will continue acting as the editor for the use case document and that Kent will continue acting as the editor for the charter.

There has already been excellent discussion on the list regarding the above, and I hope to see this continue. Dave and Kent, can each of you provide a list of things that need to get done for each document so we can effectively track the work (I'm willing to do the tracking)?

I would also like to propose that we consider two additional informational drafts. The first would provide additional background and motivation for the use cases - essentially tying them, in a very generic way, to the business processes that would leverage security automation and continuous monitoring standards to their benefit. The second would be an informational glossary sacm, and other efforts, could leverage to help us all stay on the same page.

If these are things the community would find useful, I would certainly volunteer to draft them.

Finally, if it makes sense, perhaps we should set up a weekly call for the next few weeks, especially with respect to the charter. I can provide dial-in details for these calls. If this is deemed a good idea by the community, we can work out an acceptable time that will accommodate our international base.

Regards,

Adam

sacm mailing list
sacm@ietf.org

<https://www.ietf.org/mailman/listinfo/sacm>